The Bridge Church, in Bradenton, Florida has a mission to love people where they are. This close knit church family really values relationships and connection, yet they lacked adequate space on their campus to connect and gather, as well as a defined entry point to the building. They also needed a better solution for the kid's check-in and ministry areas, and a larger worship venue.

When Aspen set out to partner with The Bridge, the plan was to start with a new building addition, but when the pandemic hit, the team pivoted, and while in-person attendance was low, they renovated the worship venue.

Phase two is underway with plans for a new, clear entry, with visible exterior signage. A bright and open hub with clear signage will guide them to each point: gathering and connection zones, kid's check in and ministry spaces, administrative offices, small group rooms, and the worship venue.

The goal was that the design of the space would scream relationship and draw people closer to Jesus. With this goal in mind, there's no doubt that this improved ministry space will help put The Bridge in a better position to reach the community of Bradenton for Christ.
